

Society for the Anthropology of Food and Nutrition

The Thomas Marchione Food-as-a-Human-Right Student Award

Submission for:

Research Award: _____

Research Prize: _____

Masters research: _____

Dissertation research: _____

Project Title: _____

Student Name: _____

Address: _____

Student Email address: _____

Thesis/dissertation Advisor: _____

Thesis/dissertation Advisor email address and phone number: _____

School and Program: _____

Submit completed application, cover sheet, and checklist to Dr. Amy Trubek (atrubek@uvm.edu) by September 10, 2016 (applications received after this date cannot be reviewed)

Checklist

Application Process: Research Award: four page single-spaced proposal with the following sections:

- Statement of problem/research question (up to one half-page).
- Literature review (up to one page).
- Clear articulation of the research strategy, design, methods, and analysis plan (up to one page).
- Statement of applicant's preparation for the proposed research and budget (up to one page).
- Statement of how this award and the associated research will develop the applicant's career goals (one-half page).

Additional materials:

- Student's Curriculum Vitae;
- Letter from student's thesis/dissertation chair/advisor attesting to student's preparation and status (e.g., language proficiency, having passed qualifying exam, defended proposal, etc.).

Application Process: Research Prize: four page single-spaced statement with the following sections:

- Detailed description of core findings and how they advance the work pioneered by Dr. Marchione. This should illustrate the research/action approach. How has this research served to advance an agenda for food security and/or food as a human right, at the local level and/or more broadly? Discuss the process by which research was converted to action and the current state of the process or project (up to two pages).
- Statement of the initial problem/research question with a clear explanation of how this research addresses questions of food security, food justice or food as a human right (up to one half-page).
- Literature review where the applicant articulates how his/her work/research builds on and advances Dr. Marchione's work for food justice, food as a human right, and food security (up to one page).
- Succinct description of research strategy, design, methods, and analysis (up to one half-page).
- Statement of how this award and the associated research furthers the applicant's career goals (one-half page).

Additional materials

- Student's Curriculum Vitae;
- Include as appendices any publications, reports, websites, etc. that resulted from the work proposed for the prize.